LARRY BLOSSER OPENS LIFECARE PLANNING FIRM

Ellicott City, MD – With more than 25 years as a practicing attorney, Larry A. Blosser, Esquire announces that he is expanding the services of his Howard County legal practice, Larry A. Blosser, PA. Effective immediately, he is offering life-care planning services under the trade name LifeCare Advisors.

Several years ago, Larry and Candace Blosser, R.N., realized that their fellow “baby boomers” and their parents were, for the most part, poorly prepared to deal with the many challenges of aging. Drawing upon their years of experience in law and in nursing, respectively, the Blossers decided that the holistic life-care planning approach to the practice of elder law would fill an unmet need in the Central Maryland market—helping older adults find, get, and pay for good care.

In addition to helping clients with the traditional elder law services (wills, powers of attorney, etc.), the firm provides clients with a individualized approach to making care decisions. The process starts with an in-depth interview with the senior client and a health-living assessment by the nurse. Then, LifeCare Advisors prepares a plan for the client, matching his or her wishes with available resources and recommendations identified by the firm’s professionals. The third component of the life-care planning process is implementation and advocacy, with the firm remaining in contact with the client and family over the years to ensure the plan is implemented or amended as changes warrant.

“This is a relatively new, but growing, off-shoot of elder law. Instead of focusing on death planning, we prefer to help clients maximize the quality of their life and preserve their wealth—putting them in control of their future,” says Mr. Blosser. He adds “The process of life-care planning helps clients think through the tough questions before a crisis or life event, and then they have a detailed document and resources that will provide peace of mind as they age.”

Located in Ellicott City, LifeCare Advisors is a charter member of the Life Care Planning Law Firms Association.
